Fire and ice robert frost interpretation deutsch

Fire and Ice (The Author) Some say the world will end in fire. Some say in ice. From what I've tasted of desire I hold with those who favor fire. But if it had to perish twice, I think I know enough of hate To say that for destruction ice is also great And would suffice. (1920) Uploaded by P. T. Source of the quotation Manche sagen, dass im Feuer die Welt vergehen wird. Andere – im Eis. Von dem, was ich ein Sehnsucht spür, Wünscht ich, dass Feuer uns zerstört. Doch wenn es zweimal untergehen heißt. Da weiß ich wohl genug vom Hass. Zu sagen, die Zerstörung durch das Eis wäre auch ein großer Spass. Der völlig reicht. (1920) Uploaded by P. T. Source of the quotation 1. An Analysis of Symbolism in Fire and Ice by Robert Frost Elvera Yuniarsih 13020114120007 2. Abstract In this paper, the writer tried to analyze "Fire and Ice" by Robert Frost. The purpose of this study is to investigate the intrinsic elements as fictional languages in this poem using close reading methods. Elements of figurative languages that used in this study is symbolism. To conclude, Robert Frost wants to tell that the world is tend to be ended because of damage from fire. Keywords: Robert Frost, figurative language, symbolism. 3. Introduction Laurence Perrine in her Sound and Sense: An Introduction to Poetry stated that, "The content of poetry is definitely emotional. It presents the emotions of the poet as they are aroused by some scene of beauty, some experience, some attachment. For this reason it is often reach in sentiment and passion. The content of poetry is, equally, imaginative compact with meaning, marked by power, beauty, and dignity. In order to understand this fully, we need to understand what it is that poetry says". (1956:3). 4. Theoretical Framework Figurative Languages Figurative languages is a word or phrase that has a meaning something different than its literal meaning. It can be a a different way of pronouncing a word or phrase such as with alliteration to give further meaning or a different sound. There are many types of Figurative languages, but in this paper, the writer only focuses on Symbolism. Symbolism occurs when a noun which has meaning in itself is used to represent something entirely different. Examples are: Using an image of the American flag to represent patriotism and a love for one's country. Using an apple pie to represent an American lifestyle. Using an apple to represent education. 5. Scope of The Study The Scope of the study is to analyze the symbolism in poetry "Fire and Ice" by Robert Frost. 6. The Poet, The Poem, and The Paraphrase Biography of the Poet Robert Lee Frost was one of the most important American poets of the 20th century. He was born in San Francisco, California, to journalist William Prescott Frost, Jr., and Isabelle Moodie. He was awarded the Congressional Gold Medal in 1960 for his poetic works and also won the Pulitzer Prize four times and was asked to deliver poem at President John F. Kennedy's 1961 inauguration. He died of complications from prostate surgery on January 29, 1963. 7. The Poem Fire and Ice BY ROBERT FROST Some say the world will end in fire. Some say in ice. From what I've tasted of desire I hold with those who favor fire. But if it had to perish twice, I think I know enough of hate To say that for destruction ice is also great And would suffice. 8. The Paraphrase Frost raises questions about the fate of the world. He wonder whether this world is likely to be destroyed by fire or ice. Some people say that the world will end in fire, but some others say that it will end in ice. He come to his own conclusion from what he have tasted of desire, so he hold with those people who favor fire with its great flame to burn down the world. But if had to perish it twice, He think he know enough the potency of ice to create destruction. Ice is also great, and it would suffice to freeze the world. Until it would be no longer lives at all. 9. Discussion Symbolism Some say the world will end in fire, Some say in ice. The opening two lines of the poem present a very distinct dichotomy between fire and ice and the two groups of people: one believing that fire will destroy the world, and the other believing that ice will destroy the world. So we must be dealing with symbols. The poet presents only two options which will destroy the world. Though the poet uses the personal pronoun "I" for the speaker, he has used "some" for the people to present it as a universal statement. Literally, fire and ice are both ways that the human species could be extinguished. After all, the world can't end in ice and fire at the same time. Ice and fire also represent two extremes which, on a grand enough scale, could cause immense damage, and are fitting metaphors for harbingers of death. 10. From what I've tasted of desire I hold with those who favor fire Frost does not go to a deep extent with the scientific beliefs and he introduces his personal emotional sides. His desire with fire and hatred with ice is obvious here. He has experienced "desire" (a "hot" emotion) so he thinks fire will end the world. He know how powerful it is. The word "tasted" implies that he knows a little about it. A connotation of "Desire" is "hot" because it relates to the body. For example, love is warm and fuzzy, but jealously and desire can get out of control. Moreover, the fact that he has had personal experience with both (in the form of desire and hate) reveals that fire and ice are not mutually exclusive, as the first two lines of the poem insist. 11. But if it had to perish twice The idea of the world ending (perish[ing]) twice is a paradox. It seems that "fire" wins over "ice" thus far. 12. I think I know enough of hate To say that for destruction ice is also great The speaker was sure that he has tasted desire, but he "thinks" he knows "enough" about hate, a cold emotion, and he knows it can destroy. It is clear that "desire" is associated with "love," because its opposite is "hate." You may think that hate is hot (fire) because it is related to anger. But perhaps the speaker is talking about slow and deliberate anger. The phrase "also great" does not tell us how ice compares to fire. We can not say that ice is more powerful than fire. In fact, though the narrator first concludes that the world will end in fire, he ultimately admits that the world could just as easily end in ice; fire and ice, it seems, are strikingly similar. 13. Conclusion In "Fire and Ice", Robert Frost wants us to know that fire describes as "Passion", which is hot and hasty and ice describes as "Rational", which is cool and deliberate by using figurative language like symbolism. We know that we must read the poem repeatedly to really have a deeper understanding of the poem, so this symbolism analysis can help us to achieve that. 14. From what I've tasted of desire I hold with those who favor fire. But if it had to perish twice, I think I know enough of hate To say that for destruction ice is also great And would suffice. Eine mögliche deutsche Übersetzung: Die Welt vergeht im Feuer, brennend. Oder sie erstarbt in Eis. Die Hitze der Begierde kennend, Seh' ich ihr Ende eher brennend. Jedoch beim nächsten Mal, wer weiß, Da wir über so viel Hass verfügen, Mag's sein, dass zur Vernichtung Eis Wird allemal genügen. hee könnt ihr mir vielleicht helfen? wir müssen dieses olle gedicht hier interpretieren, aber ich kann sowas nich schnief hat vielleicht einer ne idee, was der dichter mit diesem gedicht ausdrücken will? hier ist es: Fire and Ice-----some say world will end in fire some say in ice from what i've tasted of desire i hold with those who favor fire but if it had to perish twice i think i know enough of hate to say that for destruction ice is also great and would suffice----- danke nochmal c ya broill [center]...mein Mazdi [/center] Gar nicht so einfach! Klasse noch net, ich wüsst net was man dazu sagen sollte... Piper Metzki ich liebe dich! lol Hast Du's denn schon übersetzt? Dabei könnte ich Dir helfen, aber interpretieren mußte ich noch nie (oder ich hab's vergessen!) Feuer und Eis Manche sagen, die Welt würde im Feuer enden. Manche sagen, im Eis. Von dem, was ich vom Verlangen geschmeckt habe, glaube ich eher denen, die Feuer vorziehen. Aber ich wenn ich zweimal umkommen würd'ich denke ich weiß genug über Hass, um zu sagen, dass Eis für die Vernichtung genügt, auch gut ist und genügt. Hoffe das hilft. Ich würde übrigens sagen, dass mit Feuer der Krieg gemeint ist und mit Eis die Kälte der Menschen. Ist aber nur eine Vermutung.
